2007 Vina Garces Silva Amayna Chardonnay

Vina Garces Silva
A Chardonnay Dry White Table wine from Leyda, Chile

Source	Reviewer	Rating	Maturity	Current (Release) Cost
Wine Advocate # 179 Oct 2008	Jay Miller	93	Drink: N/A	$25 (25)

The 2007 Chardonnay exhibits mineral, almond, white peach, and poached pear aromas. On the palate it displays elegance, a creamy texture, layers of flavor, and a striking resemblance to Grand Cru white Burgundy. It is a steal at the asking price.

Leyda appears to be Chile's premier cool-climate grape growing region if these Garces Silva wines under the Amayna label are any indication.

Wine Advocate # 179 Oct 2008	Jay Miller	91	Drink: 2008 - 2014	$30 (30)

The 2006 Pinot Noir is medium to dark ruby-colored with a toasty perfume of raspberry and cherry. This leads to a velvety-textured Pinot with ample sweet, spicy fruit, excellent depth, incipient complexity, and a long, pure finish. It should provide pleasure over the next six years.

Leyda appears to be Chile's premier cool-climate grape growing region if these Garces Silva wines under the Amayna label are any indication.

Wine Advocate # 179 Oct 2008	Jay Miller	92	Drink: N/A	$30 (30)

The 2007 Sauvignon Blanc Barrel Fermented is light gold-colored with a touch of nicely integrated toasty aromas, spring flowers, fresh herbs, and citrus. Rounder and creamier than its unoaked sibling, this nicely layered Sauvignon might well evolve for 2-3 years but there is no need to defer gratification.

Leyda appears to be Chile's premier cool-climate grape growing region if these Garces Silva wines under the Amayna label are any indication.
